What were the Fund’s costs for the last year?

Class Y	$106	0.97%

How did the Fund perform last year?

- For the 12-month period ended October 31, 2024, the Fund’s Class Y shares returned 18.79%.
- In comparison, the MSCI Emerging Markets Index (the “Index”) returned 25.32% for the same period.

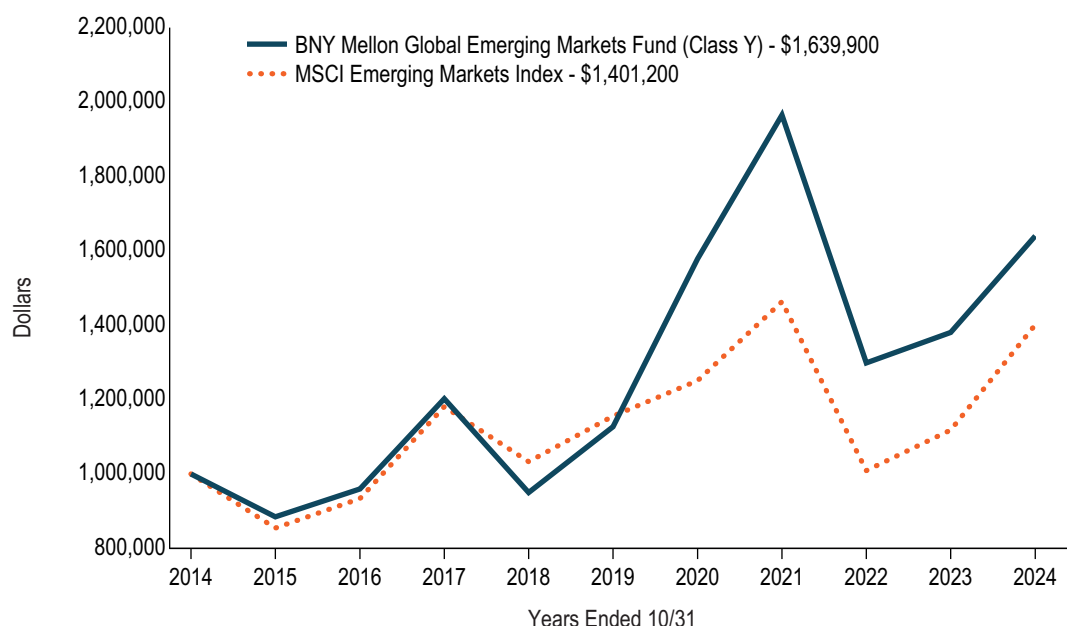

What affected the Fund’s performance?

- Easing U.S. monetary policy and the surprise announcement by China’s policymakers of a major stimulus package helped drive strong market returns over the period.
- On a sector basis, in a weak oil-price environment, the Fund’s relative performance benefited most from its zero weighting in energy. Stock selection in industrials and materials also contributed positively.
- On a country basis, the Fund benefited most notably from positions in a U.S.-listed wafer-fabrication equipment supplier and a leading, Latin American e-commerce marketplace operator.
- On a sector basis, financials detracted most from relative performance, largely due to the Fund’s insurance holdings, with consumer staples representing another area of weakness.
- On a country basis, stock selection in China and Hong Kong, most notably in the consumer discretionary sector, detracted most, followed by overweight exposure to the lagging Mexico market.

How did the Fund perform over the past 10 years?
